Why Play Table Tennis?

For some people table tennis is a sport played as kids in the church gathering hall many years ago or perhaps in a friend's gaming room but table tennis is so much more!

There are many benefits to playing table tennis. It is terrific cardiovascular exercise that improves overall health, coordination, reflexes, and mental alertness. Yes, it is a physical activity but is played mainly indoors so weather is never a problem and safe for all ages! If you don't feel you can hit a ball hard enough, why not sharpen your tactical strategy or hone in on your accuracy? With practice and dedication, you can make table tennis your own by focusing on your own talents and drive which, of course, you need to play to discover your own unique qualities!

Dutch Sport Club Life

Unique to the Netherlands is a sporting club culture that revolves around specific organizations like football (soccer), tennis or chess that are dedicated to providing a warm, active and safe place for members to participate in general play, training and competitions. But the club scene isn't solely about sports. It is also a community based culture that maintains the ever important human need to feel connected. Sport lovers of all levels and ages socialize and find needed rest and relaxation in a comfortable atmosphere.

Clubs are focused on a common love for a particular sport that connects its members in a way you generally don't see, for instance, at a fitness gym or public swimming pool. The shared interest is the heart of a sports club and the collective of its members...the soul.
